of the head of this gigantic concentration of $100,000,000 of American wealth, He is Floyd Bestwick Odlum.

There are reasons why you have never heard of Atlas Corporation or Odlum.

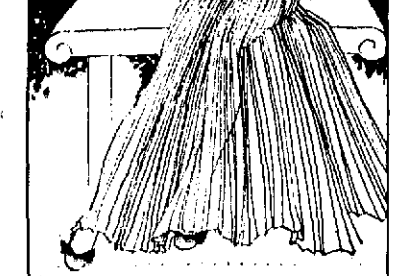

The whole thing is new. Back in the boom days of 1929, Atlas Corporation was just another investment trust, and Odlum was just another promoter, speculator, or financial expert among the dozens who found the browsing good in those green pastures. He had already built up a cash stake of $40,000 into better than $15,000,000 at that time.

Pyramids His Pile
Pretty good takings, but the total wasn't impressive among the mounting millions of those days. Everybody was making money then.

The thing that makes Odlum stand out is the fact that in the years of the locust since 1929, Odlum went right on and pyramided his $15,000,000 up to above $100,000,000.

The whole thing was originally purely financial, of interest to only a few. Now it is branching out, as all financial concentrations do sooner or later, into managing industries over which it gained financial control.

It is this aspect that particularly interests the SEC. It wants to learn, in

Liquor Referendum Petition Is to Be Circulated Tuesday

100 Copies Authorized at City Hall Rally Friday Afternoon

MAY VOTE FEB. 18

Petitioners Must Obtain
Signatures of 35% of
Poll Tax List

Approximately 100 petitions asking County Judge H. M. Stephens to call an election February 18 to vote on a county referendum on the liquor question were distributed Friday afternoon at a prohi rally held at Hope city hall.

The petitions will start circulating Tuesday morning in all 36 precincts of the county. Thirty-five per cent of the qualified voters of the county are required.

Approximately 100 attended the meeting. Among those present were the general committee, headed by John P. Vesey as county chairman, and 27 precinct chairmen.

Petition for Local Option Vote on Liquor Under Act 108 of the Acts of 1935.

To the Honorable H. M. Stephens, Judge of the County Court of Hempstead County, Arkansas.

WHEREAS, Article VII of Act 108 of the Acts of the 50th General Assembly, approved on the 16th day of March, 1935, known as the Arkansas Alcoholic Control Act, provides that upon the petition of 35 per cent of the qualified voters of Hempstead county it shall be the duty of the County Court to call an election for the purpose of taking the sense of the legal voters of such above mentioned territory upon the proposition whether or not spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors shall be sold, bartered, or loaned within the above mentioned territory; and

WHEREAS, it is declared to be the policy of the Arkansas Alcoholic Control Act to let the majority vote of the legal voters of the petitioning territory determine whether liquors shall be sold, bartered, or loaned in said territory;

THEREFORE, we, the undersigned qualified electors of Hempstead county, Arkansas, constituting 35 per cent, or more, of the qualified, legal voters and electors within said Hempstead county respectfully petition the judge of the Hempstead County Court to call an election to be held in and for said Hempstead county, in said county on the 18th day of February, 1936, said date being more than sixty days after the date of this petition is filed with the judge of the County Court, for the purpose of taking the sense of the legal voters of said territory who are qualified to vote at elections for county officials, upon the proposition whether or not spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors shall be sold, bartered, or loaned within this territory.

At such elections, the question of permitting the sale, barter, or loan, at wholesale or retail, of alcoholic liquors and alcoholic beverages, as defined in Act 108 of the Acts of 1935, shall appear on the ballot as follows:

"For sale, barter, and loan, at wholesale and retail, of spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors in Hempstead County, Arkansas."

"Against sale, barter, or loan, at wholesale or retail, of spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors in Hempstead County, Arkansas."

By this petition, we ask that the judge of the Hempstead County Court submit to the people of Hempstead County, Arkansas, the proposition whether or not spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors shall be sold, bartered, and loaned, at wholesale and retail, within this territory, to the end that the Arkansas Alcoholic Control Act may be accepted or rejected by the vote of the legal voters of this territory at an election to be held on the 18th day of February, 1936, and said election date being more than sixty days after the date of filing this petition with the judge of the Hempstead County Court, Arkansas. And if the Arkansas Alcoholic Control Act is rejected, we, specifically ask that no spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors shall be sold, bartered or loaned anywhere in said territory or in dispensaries, restaurants, hotels, or clubs in said territory, after sixty days from date Certificate of Election of Canvassing Board is entered of record in County Court.

Each of us for himself, or herself, says, I have personally signed this petition, and I am a legal voter of Hempstead County, Arkansas.

This Area 'Drunk' Declares Blaylock

Uses Hempstead, Nevada as Terrible Example at Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK.—Immediate war on the liquor traffic was urged by the Rev. Arden P. Blaylock, pastor of First Baptist church, Friday at the afternoon session of the Arkansas Baptist Training Union convention at Immanuel Baptist church.

The Rev. Mr. Blaylock said it is apparent that repeal of prohibition has had tragic consequences.

"We can legislate," the Rev. Mr. Blaylock said, "as yet the liquor traffic does not have the entrenched political power it once had. The long it stays behind legal entrenchments the stronger it will establish itself and the harder it will be to dislodge. We should strike and strike hard now while public sentiment is arousing."

"Drunkness has increased in this county 25 per cent, in Nevada county 500 per cent, in Hempstead county 300 per cent and in Logan county to such an extent that the problem is beyond power of officers to cope with. According to the sheriff of the county, only these 'fighting drunk' are locked up."

"The false promises of the wet propagandists are fresh in the public mind. They promised to solve the bootlegger problem and remove the 'blind tiger' from the field. Instead they have made his field more lucrative and given him a smoke screen behind which to operate. We have 'blind tigers' and 'legal tigers' with their eyes wide open operating in the same field. Almost an average of 10 per cent have been arrested in our state according to the state files, and they have not been curbed. They promise reduction of drinking among women and youth, but they have increased it."

Xmas Seal Drive Is Begun in Hope

Mayor Albert Graves Purchases First One—Campaign to Christmas

The annual Tuberculosis Christmas Seal campaign opened in Hope Friday and will continue until Christmas day.

Mayor Albert Graves was the first to purchase a seal.

The campaign is being launched by the various Parent-Teachers associations of Hope. An extensive campaign is planned. A canvass of downtown Hope will be made Monday. P. T. A. representatives will do the solicitation.

A F. T. A. official reported that Hempstead county at present had 117 tuberculosis patients under treatment.

A number of others are waiting to be treated.

LONDON, England.—A virtual ultimatum to Premier Benito Mussolini from Premier Pierre Laval of France, warned him to refrain from an unprovoked attack on Great Britain in the Mediterranean sea, was disclosed in authoritative British quarters Friday night.

Laval told Italy's ambassador directly, it was said, that France would consider such an attack to be an attack on France.

(Paris dispatches said M. Laval's action on the subject of an unprovoked sea attack against Great Britain had wrecked Italian hopes for further delay in a League of Nations oil embargo against the Fascist kingdom.)

Oil Sanction Next
High quarters, professing no alarm over reports of mysterious Italian troop movements, expressed the opinion that oil sanctions against Italy would be applied quickly following the December 12 meeting of the League of Nations Sanctions Committee.

Laval was said to have delivered his tact ultimatum to the Italian ambassador, Vittorio Cerruti, after a conference with Sir George Russell Clerk, ambassador from Great Britain. Clerk had asked M. Laval to give Italy a straightforward reminder that all members of the League of Nations are standing together to resist attacks.

This, as a matter of fact, was a reaffirmation of previous agreements between Great Britain and France. But its importance, observers said, lay in the fact that this time the French statement was direct and official.

Minnesota's Coach Announces Selections by NEA Service Board

LESTER AT CENTER

T. C. U's Great Star on Team—Also, Wilson, His S. M. U. Opponent

By BERNARD W. BIERMAN
Head Coach, University of Minnesota MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—As a member of NEA Service's committee of coaches, it is my privilege to announce the All-America team of 1935.

The first club is a capital one—the pick of coaches, from Bowdoin to Southern California.

Naturally, great athletes are left off. That is the sad feature of "All" arrays.

To honor a small group, it is necessary to slight many remarkable boys. In these days of varieties of 20 and more, not even 33 places are enough to give credit to all the fine young men entitled to it.

But All-America teams long since have become a recognized preliminary to the holidays. People insist upon them.

Take the Minnesota team as an example. Dick Smith, tackle, is the only man the Gophers place although our seniors graduate without even having been on the losing end. Ed Widseth, Minnesota's other tackle, is on a par with Smith, but he is a junior and drew fewer votes in a balloting that gave no more than one position to any one institution.

So Widseth finds himself on the second team, along with such other splendid players as his teammate, Sheldahl, tackle, and James (Moose) place-kicking Stanford end, and James Whistman, Whatley, crack Alabama tackle.

Picked From 219 Players
A coach is mighty proud of all his boys, but I do believe that Beise belongs in anyone's all-star lineup. He is one of the finest fullbacks that I have ever coached. This was his best season. He has as much drive on-line backs as any fullback I have ever seen, and was equally capable when blocking or on defense.

I would say, too, that Minnesota would not have gone through the campaign unbeaten and untied without such a capable all-round player as Vernal (Babe) LeVoi. He started the season as fullback, switched to right half when we lost Julius Alton, and finished, at quarterback, after Capt. Glenn Seifert suffered a broken collar bone in the Tulane engagement.

LeVoi turned in a outstanding job at each position and never lost any of his effectiveness, yet all this phenomenal senior gets for all his stellar performances and weeks of hard work is honorable mention.

I dwell on these players just to let everybody know that I realize to the fullest extent how coaches and admirers of the many stars feel when similarly treated.

But enough of that. Here's NEA Service's first All-America, and it goes without saying that I, or any other coach, would like to put it on the field. As is annually the case, it was carefully sifted from a monumental mass of opinions and 219 recommendations.

The Western Conference has a slight bulge with three players. The east, south, and southwest land two places each, and the Pacific coast and Big Six Conference one each.

Four Chosen Unanimously
John Jacob (JAY) Berwanger of Chicago, Robert Wilson of Southern Methodist, Riley Smith of Alabama, and Robert H. Grayson of Stanford are the backs.

The ends are Morie Wendt of Ohio State and Gaynell Tinsley of Louisiana State.

Art Detzel of Pittsburgh is paired with Dick Smith at tackle.

Capt. Biff Jones, who did so well in his first year at Oklahoma's coach, and other Big Six and southwestern coaches said so many nice things about J. W. (Dub) Wheeler, Sooner

The Truth About Diet

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Meat Important in Diet

One of the most prevalent fads today is vegetarianism. Vegetables, to be sure, have much significance in the daily diet, but don't let a vegetarian give you the idea that meat is harmful to the human body.

Discovery of the fact that liver contains an important principle which overcomes pernicious anemia; that the pancreas or sweetbread contains substance called insulin, which is necessary for digestion of sugars; and that other glands in the human body also contain important principles, has made vegetarians realize how essential meat may really be in the human diet.

As a result of these discoveries, moreover, liver, which used to be just cat meat, given away by the butcher to anyone who bought a roast, now is one of the highest priced meats in the shop.

The final answer, of course, is the fact that the famous explorer Stefansson lived on an exclusive meat diet for many months and found himself at the end of this time in just as good physical condition as when he started. Moreover, he was again examined several years later and found to be in just as good condition of health after the lapse of these years as before.

In the past it used to be argued that eating meat would be particularly harmful to the kidneys, but there is no evidence that this food, if taken in moderation, will harm the kidneys in any way.

Today's Health Question

Q.—Frequently after wrestling I develop pimples and boils on my skin. Has wrestling anything to do with this?
A.—Wrestlers, like football players and oarsmen, suffer frequently with furuncles, or boils. It is not known definitely whether the infection is transferred from another wrestler, or whether it comes from the mats on which the wrestling takes place. Hygienic authorities recommend use of mat covers made of Canton flannel or some similar material, which can be removed, washed, and sterilized at least once each week. In addition, the mat covers and the mats may be sprayed with an antiseptic solution occasionally. Wrestlers' suits should also be washed thoroughly once each week.

There is also a notion that the white meat of chicken is less harmful than the red meat, yet there is really little, if any scientific evidence to justify this belief.

The evidence that meat does not cause high blood pressure, rheumatic or kidney diseases is much better than the evidence that it is in any way related to causation of these conditions. The doctor preaches moderation. It is just as imperative to avoid meat as it is to overeat.

In choosing meats we must remember that Eskimos and others, who live largely on meat, eat not only the lean meat, such as steaks, roasts and chops, but also the various glandular organs and entrails which civilized men throw away.

These organs are particularly useful for their glandular extracts, the vitamins, and mineral salts.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

One of the most charming little books of children's verse to come to this reviewer's desk in a long time is an unpretentious affair entitled "Our Neighborhood." And it is made all the more charming by the fact that its author, Eleanor Frances Delaplaine, is just 12 years old.

Young Miss Delaplaine has written about her playmates, the games they play and the pets they have, and the book includes a number of photographs of this youthful poet and her "circle."

But I wish to point out that this book is not a stunt—that is, it is not a puffed-up collection of tenth grade rhymes brought out at the expense of a doting parent. Its verses can stand on their own feet amid adult competition.

A poet of established reputation, for as early as 190 B. C., the ancient Egyptians imposed taxes on the rich.

United States and Canada reach agreement on trade treaty.

instance, could be proud of a lyric as graceful as this:
At dusk when all the sky grows dark
And everything is still,
The tiny little fireflies
Come softly from the hill.
They circle all about the sky
With lanterns all so bright,
They come to light me off to bed
And then to say "good night."
The books is worth owning. It is a remarkable achievement for a youngster of 12. Dorrance is publishing it for $1.25.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

"Mother, may I go to Betty's house?"
"No. Stay here and play. You are always wanting to go places."
"You let me go yesterday."
"Now, don't start to coax. I said 'no' and I mean 'no.'"

Daisy took this philosophically enough. She was accustomed to her mother's change of mind. She watched her mother set the table and followed her to the door when the mail man came.

"Mummy" opened a letter that held a little slip of blue paper. And then suddenly she caught Daisy in her arms and hugged and kissed her.

After that she called up daddy to tell him about some money coming. Daisy was very happy too, but the little sober-sides never let on.

She decided not to ask to go to Betty's. This time she would ask to go to Lottie's house, that forbidden heaven, which she blocked away, much further than Betty's.

Turn About
So she said, "Mother, can I go to Lottie's and play?"
"Yes, dear, I'm quite sure you'll be safe."

So Daisy went and had a good time and wished her mother would get a blue letter every day.

Mother now wrote more often at her desk. Sometimes she mailed out letters of her own in long envelopes. But no more letters arrived for awhile with money in them. Then one morning came one that had a yellow slip.

Again her mother kissed Daisy and telephoned father. So Daisy decided that good news could be either yellow or blue. This time she again asked to go to Lottie's house. And was allowed.

Then she discovered something else. When her mother was writing she wouldn't pay much attention to Daisy. "Now be good and very, very quiet, dear. Mother has to work."

One day she slipped off to Lottie's house without asking. She told when she came back but her mother didn't seem to hear.

It was easy from that time on for Daisy to go wandering, which of course, she did. Silence, she figured, gave consent.

One day the postman left a letter that her mother had eagerly anticipated. In it was a pink rejection slip. But instead of smiling and kissing Daisy and telephoning daddy, mother tore the slip angrily and then started to cry.

"Don't cry, mummy, I'm here," comforted Daisy.
"Oh, shut up. Go away and don't bother me."

Evidently pink was bad news. Daisy wandered off to Lottie's. Her mother didn't care where she was, she said to herself.

When she came home she was spanked. She said she was sorry and wouldn't do it again, but away down in her heart she could not quite discover what it was she should be sorry for. Mothers were so "mixing."

Glorifying Yourself

By Alicia Hart

Letters from readers prove that every beauty-minded woman has figured out at least one routine that she does at home and which answers some important individual beauty problem.

"My finger nails used to split, peel and break and look pretty terrible most of the time," writes a New York woman. "I started working three times a week, and within two months, they were healthy and attractive. To make sure that they'll stay nice, I have continued to treat them with warm oil about once every ten days. It works."

"For some strange reason, I disliked plain vinegar or lemon rinses," writes another. "Now, after I have washed my hair, rinsed, washed again and rinsed twice with plain water, I put half a cup of vinegar in two quarts of water, add the juice of one fresh lemon, rinse carefully with this solution, then again with plain water. My hair is easier to comb after the shampoo and it seems to stay softer and prettier for a longer length of time.

Still another girl wrote to tell me that she is one who doesn't care whether lipstick stays on for hours or not. She doesn't mind putting on a fresh coat every hour or so. Furthermore, her lips are rather dry, so she applies a thin coat of cream before smoothing on lipstick. Naturally, the color doesn't stay very long, but her lips remain moist. The arrangement satisfactorily solves her problem, anyway.

"Dole" Is Cut Off

Complete liquidation of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration was announced by aides of Harry L. Hopkins, as of December 1. Hereafter, the Works Progress Administration will stand as the government relief unit.

The long-heralded end of FERA which has spent more than $3,000,000,000 since it was set up in May, 1933, came during the absence from the capital of both President Roosevelt and Hopkins.

Both were in touch with developments. The president earlier in the day had declared in his Atlanta speech that with 3,125,000 needy at work on last Wednesday, the job objective virtually had been attained. Aubrey Williams, assistant chief of WPA and FERA, talked by telephone with Hopkins in New York city before receiving reporters and amending the president's statement. The entire 3,500,000 he announced, would be at work "by Saturday night."

Williams conceded that direct relief would be continued in December. That the allotments made Friday may be used next month for what has been called the "dole" was acknowledged even as he asserted that the p2 states not previously acted upon had "received their last allotment of federal funds by FERA."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

After the death of her parents, lovely DANA WESTBROOK, child of her mother's second marriage, comes to America to live with her grandmother, MRS. WILLIAM CAMERON.

Dana's half-sister, NANCY, who lives in a beautiful over Dana's coming.

Mrs. Cameron decides to introduce Dana to the social set, hoping rich RONALD MOORE will become seriously interested.

Dana, meanwhile, has met and become attracted to young OLLIE SCOTT STANLEY.

Nancy who masks her love for Ollie by acting an antagonistic attitude, dresses humbly for the party, her happiness fades when she sees Dana, radiant and beautiful, in a twin track.

Dana, alone on the porch while Ronald goes to bring her a glass of punch, answers a white note from the garden, and finds Scott there.

Returning, Ronald finds Nancy kissing her, thinking she is Dana. Nancy's vehement anger puzzles him.

Now go on with the story!
CHAPTER X
WITHIN a month everyone had ceased to speculate about Dana and Ronald Moore. They were engaged—or soon would be. Every body said so; the constant attention she showered upon her proved it. Dana had won the town catch, and that was that!

There was talk among the older women about Mrs. Cameron's match-making proclivities. Ambitious mothers relinquish a coveted goal none too gracefully. Mrs. Weatherford, who lived across from the Camerons, discussed the situation with her friend, Mrs. Prescott, sitting on the porch of the Weatherford home.

Ronnie's roadster had been parked before the Cameron front door earlier in the afternoon but now it had disappeared.

"It's like turning a clock back," Mrs. Weatherford said. "Agatha Cameron used the very same tactics to push the child's mother into a loveless marriage when she was eating her heart out for young Westbrook. I always thought Agatha deserved every thing she got in the way of unhappiness for that affair."

"Well, nobody would guess her granddaughter is being pushed," Mrs. Prescott scoffed. "I've heard that when she found out he was the richest boy in town she got out that old rattletrap car of hers and staged a breakdown right in front of his home. A friend of mine saw her!"

Grandmother Cameron was driving home as this conversation took place. She had gone out into the country for eggs. Four dozen of them, boxed, were hidden beneath an old rug in the back of the car. Eggs were cheaper, bought that way. It was one of the petty economies Grandmother Cameron loathed but had practiced for years. She had never really become accustomed to being poor. Not even during the depression. When one also occupied the seat of the smart custom-built roadster.

"Everything's going as it should," Mrs. Cameron mused with satisfaction. "Ellen and I are old. It doesn't make any difference about us. We've muddled along on the rent money from those little shotgun houses and that old store all these years. But I want something better for those girls."

With All My Love

BEGIN HERE TODAY

After the death of her parents, lovely DANA WESTBROOK, child of her mother's second marriage, comes to America to live with her grandmother, MRS. WILLIAM CAMERON.

Dana's half-sister, NANCY, who lives in a beautiful over Dana's coming.

Mrs. Cameron decides to introduce Dana to the social set, hoping rich RONALD MOORE will become seriously interested.

Dana, meanwhile, has met and become attracted to young OLLIE SCOTT STANLEY.

Nancy who masks her love for Ollie by acting an antagonistic attitude, dresses humbly for the party, her happiness fades when she sees Dana, radiant and beautiful, in a twin track.

Dana, alone on the porch while Ronald goes to bring her a glass of punch, answers a white note from the garden, and finds Scott there.

Returning, Ronald finds Nancy kissing her, thinking she is Dana. Nancy's vehement anger puzzles him.

Now go on with the story!
CHAPTER X
WITHIN a month everyone had ceased to speculate about Dana and Ronald Moore. They were engaged—or soon would be. Every body said so; the constant attention she showered upon her proved it. Dana had won the town catch, and that was that!

There was talk among the older women about Mrs. Cameron's match-making proclivities. Ambitious mothers relinquish a coveted goal none too gracefully. Mrs. Weatherford, who lived across from the Camerons, discussed the situation with her friend, Mrs. Prescott, sitting on the porch of the Weatherford home.

Ronnie's roadster had been parked before the Cameron front door earlier in the afternoon but now it had disappeared.

"It's like turning a clock back," Mrs. Weatherford said. "Agatha Cameron used the very same tactics to push the child's mother into a loveless marriage when she was eating her heart out for young Westbrook. I always thought Agatha deserved every thing she got in the way of unhappiness for that affair."

"Well, nobody would guess her granddaughter is being pushed," Mrs. Prescott scoffed. "I've heard that when she found out he was the richest boy in town she got out that old rattletrap car of hers and staged a breakdown right in front of his home. A friend of mine saw her!"

Grandmother Cameron was driving home as this conversation took place. She had gone out into the country for eggs. Four dozen of them, boxed, were hidden beneath an old rug in the back of the car. Eggs were cheaper, bought that way. It was one of the petty economies Grandmother Cameron loathed but had practiced for years. She had never really become accustomed to being poor. Not even during the depression. When one also occupied the seat of the smart custom-built roadster.

"Everything's going as it should," Mrs. Cameron mused with satisfaction. "Ellen and I are old. It doesn't make any difference about us. We've muddled along on the rent money from those little shotgun houses and that old store all these years. But I want something better for those girls."

Hollywood

By Paul Harrison

HOLLYWOOD—Most people here have decided the depression is just about over, and it looks as if the movie business would be out of its retrenchments by Christmas.

Not so long ago it was considered very bad taste indeed to talk about million-dollar productions, and half-million dollar salaries, and $10,000 parties where wrist watches and jeweled cigarette cases were the favors.

It was not even considered wise to give brilliant premieres at Grauman's Chinese Theater, where ladies in rubies, square-cut emeralds, and such were obliged to scurry between long rows of ordinary onlookers wearing mixed expressions.

In these days you heard that the stars were living very quietly, darning their own oatmeal, and giving to charities until it hurt. For entertainment they sat around and drank tea and played intellectual parlor games.

Stenographers working for $1200 a year were not reminded that their theater admissions contributed anything to the $1200-a-day salaries of certain actresses. The glitter was dulled, the trumpeting muted.

Glad to Spend
It's all right now to talk about expensive productions. A friend congratulated Irvin Thalberg on "Mutiny on the Bounty." "It's terrific!" he said. "Looks like a million!" "That would be only mildly colossal," said Thalberg. "This picture cost two million."

The cost of making pictures is higher than ever before, and executives seem happy about it. Little independent who don't know where their next payroll money is coming from are lying cheerfully about squandering fortunes.

The major companies are reluctant to admit that any picture is costing less than a million dollars for fear they'll be accused of making a "quackie." On some productions, $500,000 has been spent before cost and cameramen did a lick of work.

No one is astonished these days when an entire chorus is put into costumes costing $250 each for a dance scene lasting 72 seconds on the screen. Virginia Bruce, in "The Great Ziegfeld," wears a $9000 gown. An entire feature-length picture, considerably might be made for $9000. Some of the Chaplin two-reelers used to cost only about $500 apiece.

Not So Wild Parties
You still don't hear much about individual prodigality of the platinum-doorknob and two-maids-for-a-Pompeian type. Stars are beginning to vie with one another, though, in the splendor of their palaces, the number of their beach and mountain cottages, and the size of their ranches.

Parties may be costly, but they're not deliberately publicized as prodigal orgies. You don't find assistant directors or middle-rate featured players buying out entire night clubs for an evening of heyhey.

And yet you do hear that the house rentals asked of movie people are soaring into the stratosphere. The reason, a real estate man tells me, is that parties are getting wilder and everything in a house is pretty sure to be broken.

Too Much Is Too Much
Silly Eilers had a significant experience the other day. She was trying to hire some servants, and was interviewing a married couple who last worked for a well-known director. They had left his employ voluntarily, and Miss Eilers asked why.

"It was a very nice place," explained the man, "and Mr. Blank is a fine gentleman. My wife and I—we didn't mind cleaning up after his parties, his ordinary parties. But one night he flooded the whole blooming living room so his guests could go swimming. That was when we gave notice."

Proper Memorial
I don't know what kind of memorial is going to be built with all the millions that are being raised for the Will Rogers fund. When the campaign is over, the directors will start looking around for some appropriate use for the money.

It seems to me that their responsibility of selection is absurdly simple, their course clear. The Rogers Memorial should be a home for old and indigent performers, not necessarily in Hollywood, and certainly not restricted to the welfare of screen actors. In addition to veterans of the legitimate theater, there ought to be room for some maimed rodeo riders.

Rogers loved all humanity, and he gave more time and effort than any other celebrity to benefit performances for charity. Actors and actresses, in turn, are the most unselfish and charitable people on earth.

Here's a chance for public acknowledgment of gratitude to them, and for doing honor to the best loved member of their craft.

Old Game Dog In November

His blood that ran slow in Spring and with Autumn's turning is quickened under his hide now, taut and tense. He sniffs, in the bitter-blue smoke of acorns burning. Far-off ineffable scents. And hears the underbrush crack. And where a rabbit wheels, And straining to be gone with briars tearing his coat. And hurls in his ears and heaven's wind at his heels. And a bell in his throat. The dawn is a splinter of lemon-green crystal; rime. Silvers his muzzle. He gulps the icy-black air. That the gods, the inscrutable gods, may remember in time. He makes his inordinate prayer. And lo, it is answered: a light in a window, curt speaking. The snap of cold metal, quick steps on the stairs, and then, Holy, authentic, leather and corduroy creaking. The gods have remembered again!—Selected.

The above poem is reminiscent of Dock's and all other members of the Old Guard's hunting days. When the season rolls around, the ministrations of a loving and doting mistress stand spr naught; the urge for the corduroy and the bitter-blue smoke becomes too strong and he strains to be gone "where the briars tear his coat and the rime silvers his muzzle." The following lines were sent to me by a fond relative who is interested in the success of this column, but came too late for a pre-Thanksgiving publication: "Thanksgiving Day is one of the gifts of the Pilgrim Fathers to the people of this continent. The earliest observance of a harvest Thanksgiving in America was at Plymouth in 1621. The festival which at its inception was entirely religious in its character, has been observed more or less from that time onward. The celebration originated by the Pil-tackle, that room is made for him at guard. His partner is John A. C. Weller, an outstanding star of an outstanding Princeton team.

Darrell Lester, Texas Christian captain, is the center. Selectors virtually were unanimous in designating four players—Berwanger, Wilson, Grayson and Weller. Riley Smith, Tinsley, and Lester were pronounced favorites.

For three falls, Berwanger did half the ball totting, the punting and passing, directed the attack and defense, and backed up the line of a comparatively weak Chicago club. One of the most accomplished all-around backs who has galloped over Big Ten chalk lines in years, this track and field man averaged four yards per attempt against the toughest kind of competition, and 37.5 in kicking.

Wilson is one of the most feared long-distance threats in the nation. He is a handy chap on either end of a pass. NEA Service alone named him on the 1934 All-American, and he stood up with plenty to spare.

Smith Replaces Howell
Riley Smith, 200-pound Alabama quarterback, is one of the foremost blockers in the land. When the Crimson Tide missed the ball carrying of Millard (Dixie) Howell, Smith suddenly revealed that he had exceptional talent along that line, too.

It is unnecessary for me to tell you about Grayson. Bob Zuppk, Lou Little, Jimmy Plon, Frank Thomas, Howard Jones—every coach who has seen him—describe him as the most vicious ground gainer in the sport. Although he weighs 192 pounds, Grayson is one of the fastest men in the world. This product of Portland, Ore., would win both sprints and hurdles in the average track meet. He calls plays from fullback and became a sharpshooting thrower of forward passes during the 1935 grind.

Tinsley is pictured as the most polished end in Dixie since Gerald Dalrymple, Tulane's All-American of 1935 and '31. Wendt carries out all end assignments in masterful style. Dick Smith and Detzel charge fast and have the speed to beat down the field. They are a great help to ends.

Capt. Biff Jones reports that Wheeler, 227-pound senior, wrecked the line of every Big Six opponent of Oklahoma. Weller pulls out of the line to lead plays, and is a bulwark in the Princeton forward wall.

Lester, a dependable snapper-back, combines all the other qualities of the top-notch center.

This team may not suit everybody, but it would be entirely satisfactory to any coach if one like it reported each September 15. I doubt that the second and third squads are as much as a step behind and, in conclusion, I might add that any coach gladly would settle for a combination picked at random from the boys led down with honorable mention.

Will Rogers' Last Play at Saenger

"In Old Kentucky" on Local Screen Sunday, Monday and Tuesday

All of the romance, the rich down-to-earth humor and kindness that mark Will Rogers' performances have been captured in the picture which marks the climax of the great star's career, "In Old Kentucky," coming Sunday, Monday and Tuesday to the Saenger, with a 2:30 matinee both Monday and Tuesday with the usual one Sunday at 2 p. m.

Adapted and modernized from Charles T. Dazey's play—for thirty years America's favorite—"In Old Kentucky," the picture is a masterpiece of the screen.

Kentucky" presents Rogers as a philosophical, humorous horse trainer who breeds colts into champions and smooths the course of love for youngsters in the sunny south.

The plot of this colorful romance revolves about the rivalry between two feuding Kentucky families, both anxious to produce champion horses. Rogers is the trainer for the wealthy Shattucks first, then for the Martinigans. And the Shattucks replace him with a young man brought from the East, Russell Hardie, who immediately falls in love with Nancy Martingale, played by Dorothy Wilson.

Through plot and counterplot, the two families vie for advantage until the day of the big race arrives. It is then, in the smashing surprise climax, that Will Rogers proves his craftiness and his ability as match maker.

Bill Robinson, king of tap dancing, is Rogers' sidekick in "In Old Kentucky," and heads a supporting cast which includes Charles Sellon, Louise Henry and Alan Dinehart.

Japan Hits Peak in War Budgets

Military Machine Costs 47% of Total Expense of Running Empire

TOKIO, Japan.—(AP)—The cabinet approved Saturday the largest army and navy appropriations in the history of the Japanese empire, constituting 46.8 per cent of the total estimated expenditures for the coming fiscal year.

The appropriations were approved after a 22-hour session ending at 9 a. m. The action concluded a week of heated contest over the framing of the budget for the year beginning April 1, 1936.

Acceptance by the cabinet is generally regarded as meaning almost certain passage of the budget estimates by Parliament at its session beginning December 24.

The navy will receive 552,000,000 yen (about $159,480,000) for a one-year period under estimates of the new budget, and the army gets 508,000,000 (about $146,870,000). This compares, respectively, with 530,000,000 and 491,000,000 for the present budget.

The total of the new budget is estimated at 2,271,000,000 yen (about $658,590,000). The present budget totals 2,122,000,000 yen.

Admiral Mineo Osumi, minister of the navy, and General Yshiuyuki, minister of war, cited Japan's relations with America, China and Soviet Russia as reasons why larger defense appropriations should be made.

Federal Debt May Reach 30 Billions

December Borrowings Expected to Push It Above That Mark

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Treasury's December borrowing plans—to be announced Monday—Friday held potentialities for pushing the public debt above 30 billion dollars.

The extent on the rise depended on how much new borrowing, as distinguished from the refunding of maturing securities, was intended. Some who follow the light of the Treasury's current cash position, the amount might run to $500,000,000, which would carry the debt to another all time peak. It stood Friday at $29,585,000,000.

Friday's Treasury statement showed the working balance at $1,051,000,000 its lowest point in several months. This factor furnished the principal basis of predictions that new borrowings might run to $500,000,000.

Suggest Sales Tax

by Representative G. B. Colvin of Ferry county, as members of the Centennial Commission continued their efforts to obtain the sentiment of legislators toward a proposed tax on drivers' license tax be increased from 50 cents to $1 for two years, with 50 per cent of the revenue being set aside for the centennial celebration.

In a letter to Governor Futrell, Mr. Colvin, one of the legislators who attended the commission meeting in Little Rock Wednesday and spoke in favor of state aid for the project, suggested that the food and drug exemption clause in the sales tax be repealed and that a part of the increased sales tax revenue be used to finance the observance.

The clause referred to exempt certain foods and all medicines "necessary to maintain public health."

It has been estimated that receipts from the sales tax would be increased approximately one-third by elimination of exemptions.

Revenue Commissioner Earl R. Wiseman said Friday that $370,173.88 has been collected from the sales tax since it became effective last July 1. Collections on October sales tabulated and deposited in the treasury through Friday totaled $158,726.46, with several hundred remittances remaining to be tabulated. Collections for other months were: July, $229,208.76; August, $248,246.17, and September, $233,992.47.

The sales tax was enacted as a two-year emergency measure and will expire July 30, 1937, unless it is re-enacted by the 1937 legislature.

The Centennial Commission estimated that the proposed increase in drivers' license tax would yield approximately $300,000 for centennial purposes in two years.

Revenue Department records show that 177,353 driver's licenses have been issued since the act became effective the coming investigation, what influence such trust, that an productive companies in which they are interested, and how their investment policies are influenced by affiliates.

As Atlas branches actively into running barge lines, hotels, bus lines, ranches, movie companies, banks, and shipping firms, the government takes an active interest.

Minor stockholders, for the first time, have begun to question such policies. One such, William F. Walsh of New York, has asked a receiver-ship for Atlas.

He doesn't imply that it's broke. He wants Odium's management restrained from underwriting stock in the new Paramount Pictures, Inc., to the tune of more than $6,000,000.

Walsh charges that the management's interest in running such enterprises has prejudiced his judgment of a purely investment deal for Atlas.

Odium himself, a quiet and retiring man of 43, came out of the west with the look of a bank clerk, who he still has, and almost that same clerk's simple manner of living.

He hasn't changed much personally from the Methodist minister's son who worked his way through the University of Colorado with nothing to mark him out but a certain knack of making money out of student publications and enterprises.

Rise Was Rapid
He came to New York as a young lawyer, and within four years was a vice president of Electric Bond & Share, the giant utilities holding company.

In 1923, with four associates, he organized a little private pool to deal in stocks, each putting up $10,000. Odium did most of the stock-trading for the pool, and did it very successfully.

But his friends heard about it, and asked to be "let in." By the spring of 1929 there were 40 stockholders, who had put in some $800,000. And the assets had swollen to $6,000,000.

That year, some 400 more were "let in" without any public announcement, and the resulting $10,000,000 of capital controlled assets of $15,000,000. The "pool" was formally incorporated as Atlas.

Right there was where Odium made his killing. "He was one of the few who heard the rumbling of the great crash. And he started selling Atlas' assets."

But holders of the old investment trust shares were often quite well satisfied. In the case of Goldman-Sachs Trading Corporation, which had fallen from $224 a share to $1, holders soon found the Atlas shares they received in return for their Goldman-Sachs worth considerably more.

Enters Operating End
In quick succession followed All-America General, Ungerleider Financial, Sterling Securities, Chatham Phoenix Allied, National Securities Investment, Shenandoah, Blue Ridge, and so on, until Odium controlled 22 investment trusts.

In the rising market that has followed Odium's purchase, the bottom, the Atlas shares have of course risen greatly in value—assets are now probably well above $100,000,000. Many of the trusts were liquidated or merged out of their own existence to become part of Atlas proper.

All the assets of all the trusts acquired could not, of course, be sold. So Odium found himself operating many of the properties to put them in their feet and protect Atlas' investment.

In that way Odium gradually became the owner of a vast empire.

MY OWN FAULT?—LISSEN—LISSEN—IF YOU TIGHTWADS WOULD PUT OUT A FEW CENTS FOR BALN' WIRE AND TIE THEM MACHINES TOGETHER, A MAN COULD WALK PAST ONE O' THEM WITHOUT RISKIN' HIS LIFE!

YOU'VE GET HURT IN A PADDED CELL? I SUPPOSE TH' GEARS RAN YOU ALL OVER TH' SHOP, TO GRAB YOUR FOOT!

THEM TWO HAVE BEEN ARGUIN' EVER SINCE THEY WAS APPRENTICE BOYS TOGETHER—I DON'T THINK TH' FLOWERS HE BRO' WILL DO MUCH GOOD, DO YOU?

NO—IF TH' BULL O' TH' WOODS WOULD JUST LET HIM WIN TH' ARGUMENT, IT WOULD DO MORE GOOD THAN ALL TH' FLOWERS IN TH' WORLD—BUT, THEN THEY'D HAVE TO PUT TH' BULL TO BED!

BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES

YOU WOMEN ARE ALL ALIKE, CONFOUND IT! YOU'RE HARUM-SCARUM RATTLEHEADS! YOU NEVER STOP TO REASON, NOR USE ANY SYSTEM

AND ANOTHER THING...

OH, STEPHEN, HUSH! WHAT ARE YOU DOING THIS EVENING, BOOTS?

I HAVEN'T DECIDED YET! I HAVE 'LETS SEE' SEVEN DATES TO CHOOSE FROM! BUT, JIMMY IS OUT-HE LOVES MOVIES, AND I'VE SEEN THEM ALL

Well, Hello!

All Figured Out

AND, I DON'T FEEL LIKE POETRY THIS PM., SO I'D BETTER TOSS MERVIE OUT, TOO... IT'S TOO COLD TO RIDE IN BUB'S OPEN CAR—AND YOU'RE OUT OF CIGARS, PROFESSOR, SO I HADN'T BETTER YES WILLIE, EITHER! NOW, LET'S SEE...

SPENCE ALWAYS BRINGS FLOWERS, BUT WE DON'T NEED ANY TODAY—AND FERDY BRINGS CANDY! THAT'S OUT—I COULDN'T LOOK A CHOCOLATE IN THE FACE! I NEED SOME EXERCISE, THO, BADLY, SO I THINK I'LL DATE HORACE! HE'S ALWAYS BROKE, POOR DEAR, AND WE HAVE TO WALK WHEREVER WE GO

By HAMLIN

ALLEY OOP

KAZAMBA! WOULDNTCHA THINK TH' TUMBLE WE TOOK WOULD'VE BUSTED THIS CAGE OPEN, SO WE COULDA GOT OUT?!

AW—WE NEVER GET ANY BREAKS C'MON, LET'S MAKE TRACKS!

WHEN WE GET A LITTLE FARTHER AWAY FROM MOO, WE'LL HUNT UP A SHARP ROCK AN' WHITTLE OUR WAY OUTA THIS CONTRAPTION!

WASH TUBBS

WHO IS HE? DUNNO. HE SEEMS TO BE GUARDING THE SHACK.

HE LOOKS DERNED ANXIOUS TO USE THAT RIFLE, IF YOU AST ME.

AND I'M ANXIOUS TO SEE WHAT'S IN THAT SHACK, COME ON.

Oh! Oh!

Looking Things Over

SEE ANYTHING?

SHH! THERE'S SOMEBODY INSIDE.

OYE! PEDRO! TAL THE SENOR, AT LAS' I HAF FEEX THE BOAT, WE SAIL PRONTO.

EES ABOUT TAM, YOU BEEG STEEP!

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

NUTTY, WHOEVER LIVES IN THAT SHACK CERTAINLY MUST NEED CHARITY.... LET'S FIND OUT HOW MANY PEOPLE LIVE THERE!

LOOK, FRECK... COBWEBS ON THE DOOR-KNOB...AND STILL THERE'S SMOKE COMING FROM THE CHIMNEY!!

EVIDENTLY THIS HOUSE ISN'T EXACTLY OVER-RUN WITH VISITORS!

LET'S TRY THE BACK DOOR... SOMEBODY'S HOME, OR THERE WOULDN'T BE A FIRE!!

WHY CAN'T THEY LEAVE ME ALONE? WHY MUST THEY ALWAYS HOUND ME, LIKE WOLVES IN THE NIGHT?

GO AWAY! ANY MINUTE, NOW, THIS SHOTGUN MAY DELIVER MY REGARDS!!

THEY'RE RIGHT THERE BY TH' WINDER, AN' WHEN SHE SEES ME LEAVIN', SHE ALWAYS THINKS OF SUMPIN' FER ME TO DO, LIKE CLEANIN' TH' YARD, ER TH' CELLAR, ER TAKIN' A BATH, ER SUMPIN'.

IF I COULD GET 'EM INTERESTED IN SUMPIN', THEY WOULDN' NOTICE ME-- THEY'RE ALLUS NOSEY ABOUT WHUT I DO, AN' I GOT A IDEE

EE-HEE HA-HA-A--

HE'S BEEN DRAWING FUNNY PICTURES OF YOU OR ME, OR BOTH, OR ELSE WHY WOULD HE TAKE SUCH PAINS TO TEAR IT UP LIKE THIS?

WELL, WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE, AS LONG AS HE TORE THEM UP? LET ME SEE!

LET'S TAKE IT UP TO MY BEDROOM, WHERE WE WON'T BE DISTURBED WITH HIM COMING IN AND OUT

WAIT, YOU'VE DROPPED SOME OF IT! WE'LL NEED EVERY PIECE!

BY GOSH, I BETTER GO AN' CONFESS, IF I WANT ANY BREAKFAST IN TH' MORNIN'!

IT WORKED! GOSH, THEY'RE STILL AT TRYNA PIECE IT TOGETHER-- HEY! HOW ABOUT A LITTLE DINNER, HERE?

YOU'LL FIND SOME MILK IN THE REFRIGERATOR, AND A BOX OF GRAHAM CRACKERS IN THE CUPBOARD-- WE'RE BUSY!

WELL, I CN GET AWAY AGAIN, AFTER DINNER-- BUT, WHUT A DINNER!

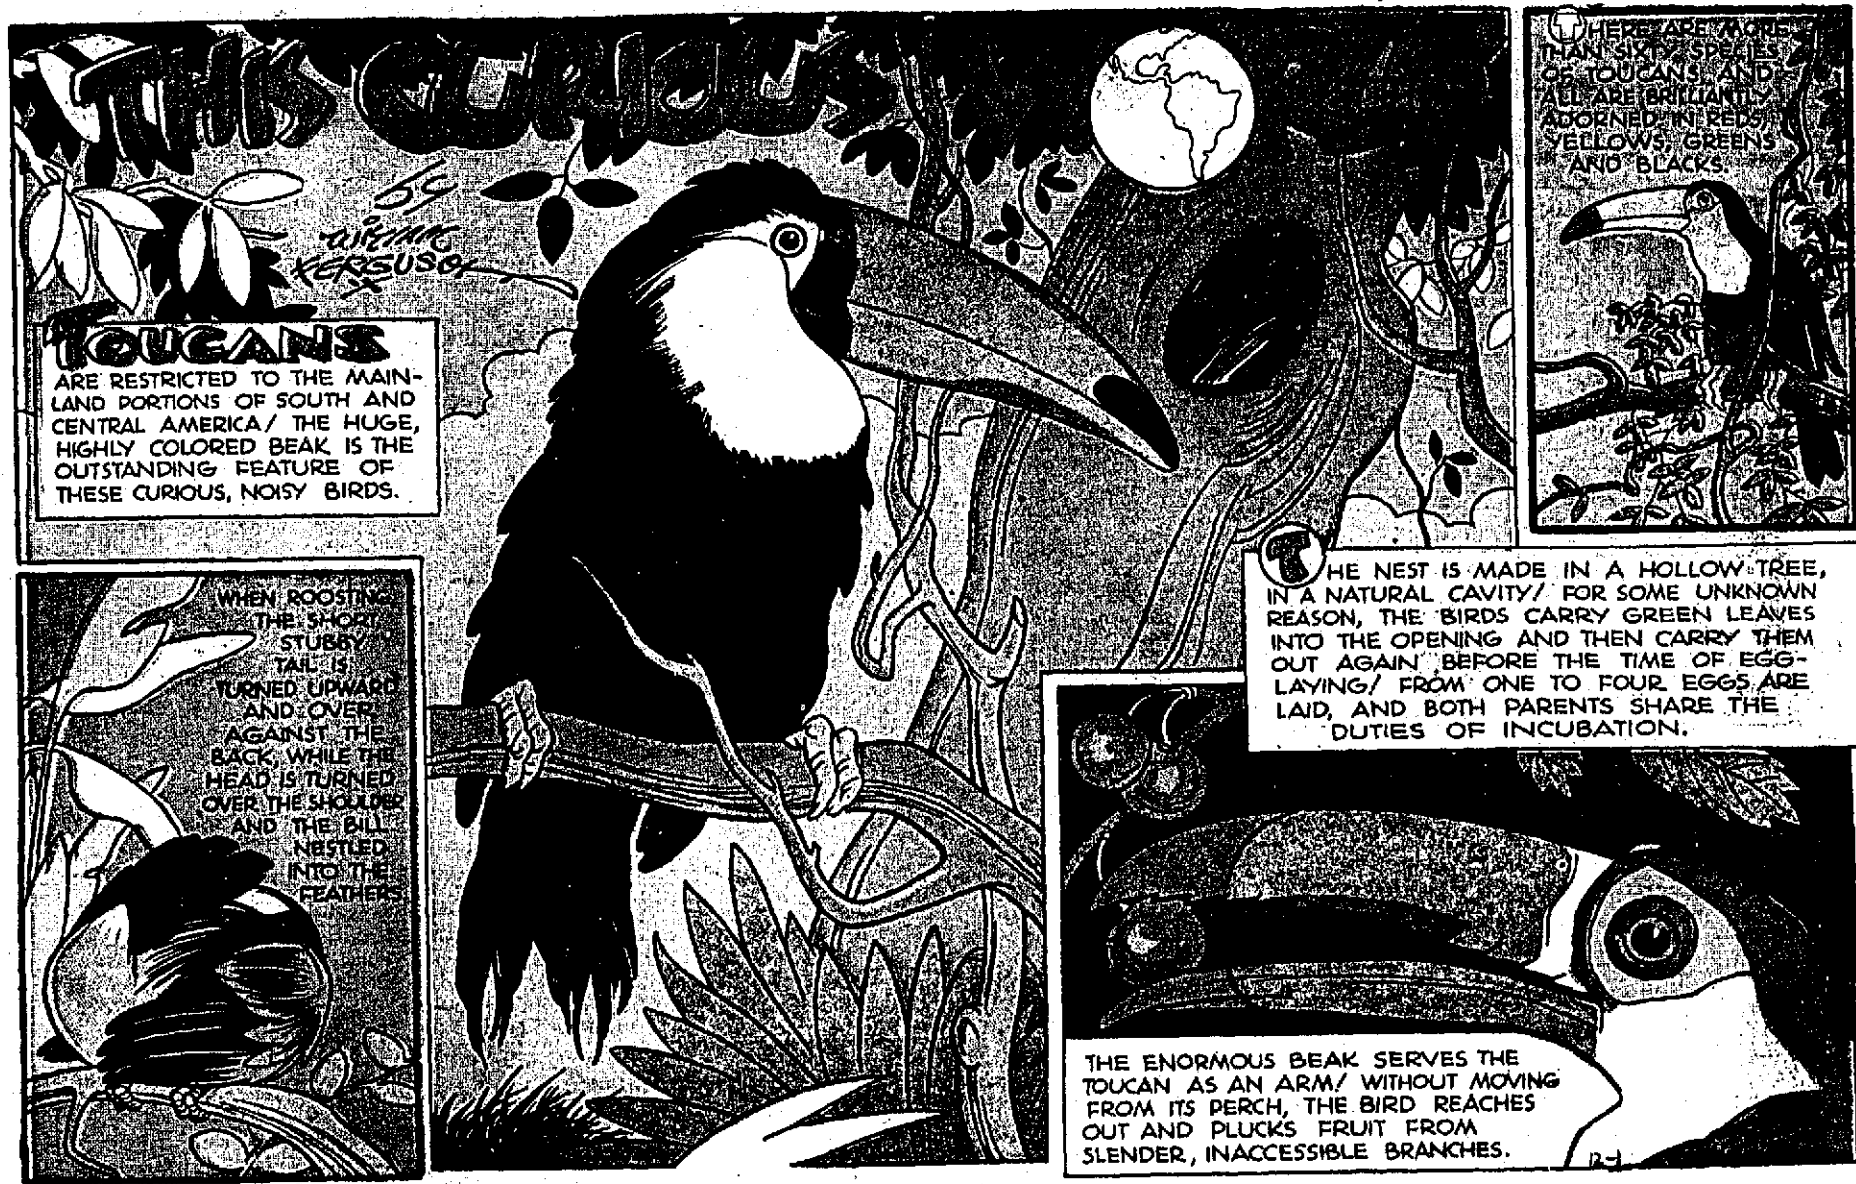

THERE'S SOME COLD ROAST FROM YESTERDAY-- THE BREAD IS IN THE BREAD BOX-- BUTTER AND MILK IN THE REFRIGERATOR-- WE'RE BUSY!

HEY, IT'S AFTER SUPPER TIME! WHEN DO WE EAT?

JUST A MINUTE!

WITH CURIOUS

TOUCANS
ARE RESTRICTED TO THE MAIN-LAND PORTIONS OF SOUTH AND CENTRAL AMERICA/ THE HUGE,
HIGHLY COLORED BEAK IS THE OUTSTANDING FEATURE OF THESE CURIOUS, NOISY BIRDS.

THERE ARE MORE THAN SIXTY SPECIES
OF TOUCANS, AND
ALL ARE BRILLIANTLY
ADORNED IN REDS,
YELLOWS, GREENS
AND BLACKS.

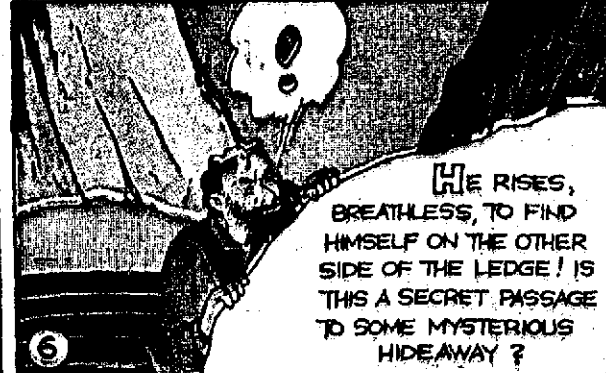

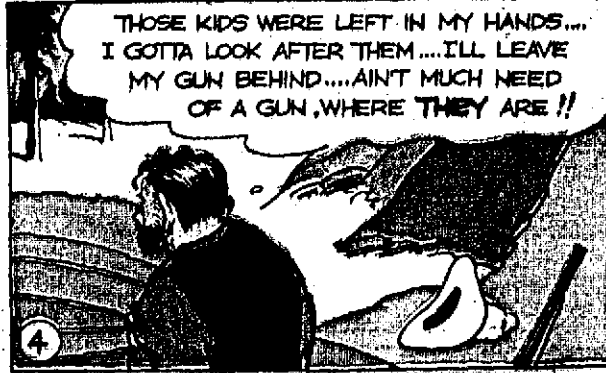

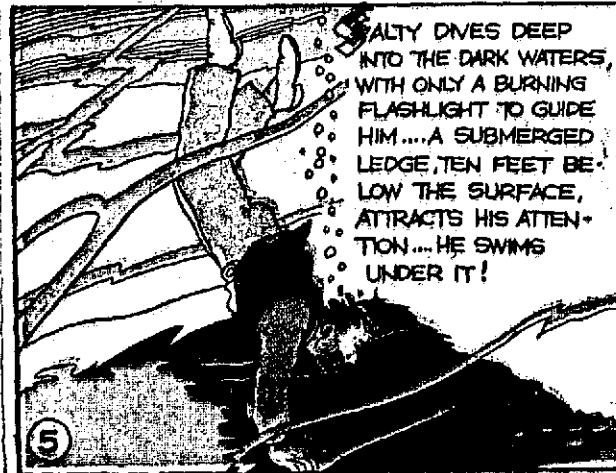

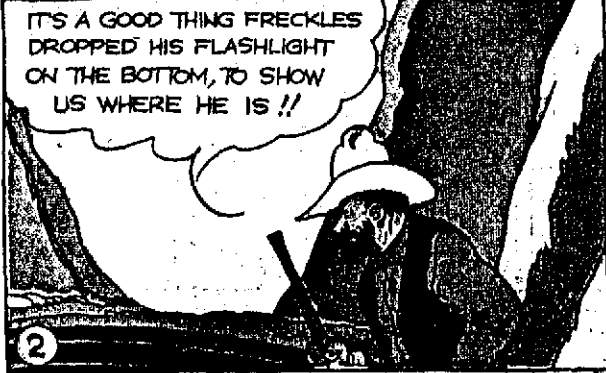

WHEN ROOSTING,
THE SHORT,
STUBBY
TURNED UPWARD
AND OVER AGAINST THE
BACK, WHILE THE
HEAD IS TURNED OVER THE SHOULDER
AND THE BILL
NESTLED
FEATHERS.

THE NEST IS MADE IN A HOLLOW TREE,
IN A NATURAL CAVITY/ FOR SOME UNKNOWN
REASON, THE BIRDS CARRY GREEN LEAVES
INTO THE OPENING AND THEN CARRY THEM
OUT AGAIN, BEFORE THE TIME OF EGG-LAYING/ FROM ONE TO FOUR EGGS ARE LAID, AND BOTH PARENTS SHARE THE DUTIES OF INCUBATION.

THE ENORMOUS BEAK SERVES THE
TOUCAN AS AN ARM/ WITHOUT MOVING
FROM ITS PERCH, THE BIRD REACHES OUT AND PLUCKS FRUIT FROM SLENDER, INACCESSIBLE BRANCHES.
